County gears up to study future borders of West Sac

■ Hopeful developer has agreed to foot the bill for expansion study, to be performed by Yolo's Local Agency Formation Commission

By David Weller

The Local Area Formation Commission (LAFCO) is ready to begin a long awaited sphere of influence study for the city of West Sacramento.

The study is intended to answer service and impact questions facing the city if expansion of the current boundaries occur. An original sphere of influence study, completed in 1987, determined the current borders.

Normally LAFCO would do a study every 10 years. Merwin and Associates, a development company based in Granite Bay, has been encouraging the city to request an earlier time line because of their interest in developing 2,700 acres to the north of town.

Three years ago the developer presented the city with ambitious plans for a "community village" neighborhood to be built in the region just north of the floodgates beyond the city limits.

The design included neighborhood stores and homes wired with fiber optic cables designed for dedicated computer hook-ups to telephone lines. Such equipment built into the houses was supposed to encourage people work at home with computers and modems connected to their offices.

Among the issues the study will address are the city's ability to provided services to the area being considered for annexation, population growth projections, the amount of undeveloped land within the current borders, how annexation would affect redevelopment programs, and whether proposed growth would use current agricultural land, according to LAFCO Executive Officer Elizabeth Kemper.

At least two of the five main criteria would have a negative impact on the likelihood for approval to identify land for annexation. First, LAFCO policy is to try to direct development away from farmland. Second, there are large areas of undeveloped land already within the city borders which need to be filled in before expansion will be encouraged.

Merwin and Associates did not return the News Ledgers call Tuesday. They are, however, apparently willing to invest in the study in order to get it under way.

The developer has agreed to pay the $6,000 in administrative fees required by LAFCO to begin the study earlier. They also have agreed to pay any consultant's fee for doing an environmental impact report in conjunction with the sphere of influence study.

LAFCO is a county-wide commission made up of a city council member from each of two cities, two county supervisors, and one non-elected county resident. Its approval is necessary befor any land can be annexed to a city. Currently the West Sacramento City Council is not represented on the two commission.

Residents file appeal of city's approval of Southport development

By David Weller

Eight Southport residents filed an appeal with the city Friday of the planning commission's decision to approve a tentative map of Granite Power/Ryder Homes' proposed Gateway Development.

In a three page letter to the city council, the residents raised issues of lack of communication between the community and the city staff regarding the public hearing, concerns over traffic safety, the high density of the housing in the development, concerns over apparent partisan actions by commission members, and concerns that environmental laws have not been complied with in developing the project.

In addition the complaint takes issue with the city's position that building the Palmedessi Bridge over the barge canal will cause a thirty percent reduction in traffic over the Jefferson Blvd bridge.

Irene Eklund and seven other residents of Ironwood and Spruce streets signed the appeal.

Granite Power received the planning commission's approval of the tentative map to build a housing development off of Jefferson just south of the barge canal two weeks ago. Approval of the project is contingent upon the city council's approval the Southport Framework Plan which it will consider this month.

Honors for schools

Two local schools have received a prestigious nomination for a national award for creating scholastic achievement among disadvantaged youth.

Bryte Elementary School, under principal Linda Langtry, and Alyce Norman Elementary, under principal Ruben Reyes, have become two of only 11 schools throughout the state to be nominated for the National Recognition School Award.

33 of the state's schools were eligible for the nomination, and 25 submitted applications.

"Two of the winning 11 schools are from the Washington Unified School District," Superintendent Dave Miller pointed out in announcing the winners last week.

The awards are for "Chapter One" schools, which deal with large numbers of disadvantaged students in families judged to be "at risk." Academic gains are measured through test scores, reading samples and other criteria.

Request to drop marina sails through city council

By David Weller

The city council completed the first step in its two step approval process for lifting Lighthouse Marina's requirement to build a marina on the Sacramento River from its development agreement with the city Wednesday night. The next step, actually passing the ordinance is expected to be approved without discussion at tonight's council meeting.

Once proposed as a future "high end" development which would bring jobs and increased property values to the city, Lighthouse has fallen on tough financial times. The developer originally intended to sell unimproved lots for custom homes in a country club environment close to the river with a 350 berth marina. A high end hotel and retail stores were also planned for the area.

At one time, the city considered development of the marina to be so important to the future of the city that then Mayor Mike McGowan went so far as to fly to Washington to ask federal officials not to sell the federally owned riverfront land at public auction because the city was afraid the Lighthouse developers might not be able to buy it.

He flew at the developer's expense, until a public outcry convinced the city to reimburse the developer for the trip.

After much effort by the city to get the marina property into the right hands, the proposed development has not been able to get off the ground.

At this point, the Lighthouse Manager Peter Carollo believes that he will not be able to get financing for the housing development if the requirement for a marina remains part of the development agreement.

Since the latest development agreement in 1991, the developers have not sold any lots. The city has made a $7 million investment in the project, including widening 5th Avenue and a donation of three parcels of land. In addition the city has sold $27 million in bonds, which the developer is responsible to repay.

When the developer is relieved of its obligation to build the marina, the city will also lose its option to purchase the marina

Backers of minimum security motel explain views

By Steve Marschke

Representatives of a company hoping to win a federal bid and convert a West Sacramento motel to a minimum security halfway house said this week their project could help "stabilize" part of the city's troubled West Capitol Avenue.

In a phone interview Tuesday, vice president John Forren and fellow spokesman Richard Frank, both of Eclectic Communications, Inc. (ECI) said they understood their company's proposal would come under serious local scrutiny.

"At our other locations, we've actually had a positive effect on the community," said Farron. "While I can't say anything about this motel, the other hotels we've taken over we've shut off prostitution and drug use. We've also stabilized the area, keeping it clean and keeping people from moving through the property."

The company is looking to operate the new minimum security facility at the Best for Less Siesta Motel, at 1731 West Capitol Ave. The 40-unit complex could house a maximum of 65 "minimum security federal offenders," if the ECI proposal wins the federal bid.

The federal government is accepting bids from ECI and other companies to place such a facility in the Sacramento area.

Frank said that the inmates on site would not include sex offenders, arsonists, or people who have been convicted of heavy violence. They wouldn't be allowed to roam the area unsupervised.

"The people we would have in the program would be either working or at the facility," Forren said.

At least two trained staff people would be at the site at all times, he added, and inmates would be subjected to regular urinalysis tests for alcohol and drug use. Anyone who tests positive will be shipped out of the program.

"We do regular drug testing and alcohol testing, and if there's any drug abuse at all they're asked to go back (to prison)," said Forren.

The maximum an individual will stay at the facility is 180-days. Forren and Frank stressed that the halfway house environment provides the inmates with counseling and opportunities for vocational training, education and help "blending in" with mainstream society after their release. It is far better for society to have these inmates go through a half-way house before their release then to be dumped on the streets straight from prison, they argued.

"These people are going to be released from a federal institution within the next 180 days," said Forren. "It is always better to release them to the community after the half-way house."

The ECI officials emphasized that their West Sacramento proposal is in its infancy -- they are not yet sure they will even win a federal bid -- and they are prepared to work through the city's business permitting process.

ECI currently operates similar half-way houses in El Monte, Oakland, San Diego and San Francisco.

The company recently informed city officials of its plans. Last week, two members of the West Sacramento City Council said they have just begun studying the proposal, and intend to look into it carefully.

Corrections on honor roll and local shooting

It has been pointed out that the name of sixth grade student Susanne Cieri was accidentally left out of the Golden State Middle School honor roll last week, and the News-Ledger regrets the error.

In a separate issue, the owner of the Reno Club on West Capitol Ave. said there were several errors in the News-Ledger's Feb. 22 story on a shooting near that establishment.

The shooting occurred on Saturday night, and not on Sunday night as reported.

And although one of the participants involved in the shooting parked on the Reno Club's property, the incident occurred on the street near the business and not at the Reno Club.

The News-Ledger apologizes for the errors.

Special meet called for local school board

Washington Unified School District officials announced a special meeting for this afternoon (March 8) for the board of trustees to discuss personnel matters. The meeting, which will be in closed session, will take place at 4:30 p.m. in the district offices.

Citing the "personnel" nature of the unusual meeting, Superintendent Dr. David Miller declined further comment on its subject matter. Several board members also declined comment.

New member of Port board

County Supervisor Mike McGowan, who represents most of the city of West Sacramento on that board, has been appointed by the board as its new representative on the Port of Sacramento's governing commission.

McGowan will replace James Cameron, who stepped down.

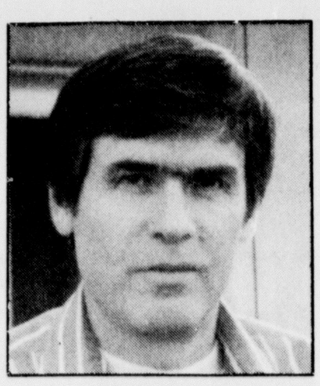

McGowan, an attorney, was the first mayor of the city of West Sacramento when it incorporated in 1987.

MIKE McGOWAN will serve as Yolo County's next representative on governing board of the Port of Sacramento, located in West Sacramento

Community effort brings student production to stage

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Last Friday afternoon, a friend of mine walked up and asked me what I was doing later that evening. "I'm going over to a friend's house about nine," I said, "after I've watched the Lakers push the Kings around on TV for awhile -- why?"

"Well," she said with conviction, "you ought to do yourself a favor and drop by Yolo High to see Golden State Middle School's production of 'Oliver' -- it starts at 7:30."

"I hear it's pretty good," I said, recalling that someone else had suggested earlier that morning that I try to attend the final performance.

"It's really something," she assured me. "Plus just think of all the heartache it'll save you not having to watch the Kings get beat for the seventh or eighth straight time."

Oliver Twist has always been one of my favorite Dickens' novels, ranking right up there with Pip and the gang from Great Expectations (I still have an occasional dream about old Miss Havisham going up in flames in her wedding dress). It has an admirable theme -- that good survives even through every adverse circumstance -- and in its day, it was considered quite shocking because it dealt so realistically with the dregs of life -- most of whom at that time happened to be very young and very poor. It was written back in the 1830's and first appeared as a magazine serial which was printed in monthly installments. It is set in the cold, wet streets of London and its characters are common thieves, prostitutes, receivers of stolen goods, and young pick-pockets.

"Putting on this play has been a real learning experience for our students," said Golden State Middle School principal Diane Tope Smith about thirty minutes before the curtain was scheduled to go up. "Not only has it helped them better understand a very important period in history, it has also required them to work very hard towards a shared goal. More than thirty of our students are involved in the play itself -- including even a few that I see in my office from time to time. I just can't say enough about what a positive experience 'Oliver' has been for the whole school."

Standing a little ways away from Diane was Mike Melton, the director of "Oliver", and I asked him to give me his impressions of the production he and his young actors and actresses had been working so hard on for so long. "I've been in or directed about 150 different shows," explained Mike, "and this has been one of my most rewarding experiences. At first, I don't think the kids knew how hard they would have to work, but now they're veterans, and they understand what is required of them each and every night. They're dedicated to each other -- they're very professional--and they're very talented."

I asked him if it would be okay if I went backstage and interviewed a few of the principal characters, and he kindly let me talk to Sara Penrod, who played Nancy; Joseph Brown, who played Bill Sykes; Rebecca Miller, who played Oliver; and Anthony Farnworth, who played Fagin.

"Aren't any of you nervous?" I asked them, noticing how cool and collected they all looked.

"Once the first word is out of my mouth," said Sara with a calm smile, "that all goes away. It's all a matter of focusing," she added, sounding a lot more mature than I ever was at her age.

"It's not scary -- it's fun," said Rebecca, "especially when they throw me in the coffin in the first act and I get to yell and scream and pound on the lid."

"I used to be a little shy," said Joseph, "and this has helped me out. I've really liked the whole experience."

"I like the speech I get to do at the end," said Anthony with confidence. "It's exciting to be out there -- I love it!"

I'm not much of a theater critic, but I can tell you by all the applause which kept thundering through the Yolo High gymnasium last Friday night that Golden State Middle School's "Oliver" was very well received indeed by the capacity crowd which showed up for the final performance. The acting and singing was great and it was obvious that a lot of thought, energy, and professionalism had gone into the direction, music, sets and costumes.

"Bringing Oliver to the stage has truly been a community effort," Superintendent Dr. David Miller told me at intermission. "It's taken a lot of people to make it happen, including parents, teachers, administrators, our maintenance, operations and transportation personnel, and of course the wonderful students who have worked so hard on their parts for the past three months. I think each and every person who participated should be very proud of themselves."

When I got home later that evening, I bravely asked my son how the Kings had done. "You don't want to know, Dad," he assured me, slowly shaking his head. Talk about the dregs of life, I thought to myself.

Some Tax Packages Have Payment Vouchers

These are typical of questions asked by taxpayers and are presented as a public service of this publication and the IRS.

Q. Why did I receive a payment voucher with my tax package this year?

A. Some taxpayers will find payment vouchers and special mailing instructions in their tax packages. In a move to speed payment handling, the IRS is phasing in centrally located "lockboxes" to receive and process all payments. Taxpayers who do not receive vouchers in their tax packages will file their returns with payments at their IRS service centers as usual.

Q. Are the vouchers and special instructions only in some tax packages?

A. People who used professional preparers last year and owed money will receive postcards with vouchers.

Q. I am a self-employed businessman and file Schedule C "Profit or Loss From Business". Will I receive a payment voucher?

A. Taxpayers who filed Schedule Cs or Schedule Fs (farm income) and owed money last year will receive a voucher and either two envelopes or one envelope and two mailing labels.

Q. What other taxpayers are affected by this new system?

A. People who have a balance due (owe money) and file with 1040PC, TeleFile, people whose returns are filed electronically, and those who file for extensions of time to file their tax return. These taxpayers must send an over-the-counter Form 1040V with their returns to the correct lockbox site.

Q. Where can I get Form 1040V?

A. Form 1040V, "Payment Voucher" can be obtained by calling 1-800-829-3676.

The Sacramento Kings (29-27) hit a mid season slump, losing seven games in a row. They started their five game road trip last week leading the Denver Nuggets by eight games in the race for the eighth and final playoff spot.

The Nuggets closed the gap to two games and they play the Kings three more times this season, including the final game of the season in Denver on April 23.

The Kings lost to Minnesota at home, then travelled to Los Angeles only to lose a double overtime game to the Lakers last Friday, but bounced back Sunday to beat the Charlotte Hornets 88-80.

The Kings, who have not lost two games in a row at home, play Utah on Tuesday and the Indiana Pacers on Thursday.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Religious intolerance?

A few weeks ago, two-thirds of the way through a News-Ledger article on a new local ministerial association, there was a quote that deserved a response. Somewhat surprisingly, none has been made since that Feb. 15 publication date.

A local pastor (who can probably be characterized as a fundamentalist Christian) told a reporter that all non-Christian faiths are "cults." The implication was that Christians are members of the only faith which is not a cult.

"When you start mixing the cults and the Christian faith, you're going to get some friction," he commented after this.

Now, in a broad sense, any religious sect can be considered a "cult," according to a foray through several dictionaries. But if this is the broad definition of a "cult" the pastor intended, then there would certainly be no reason not to include Christianity as another cult.

There is another, narrower and more negative flavor to the word "cult." This is the meaning clarified by the events in Jonestown some years ago (where several hundred people drank poisoned Kool-Aid), by the extremism of the "Moonies," and, more recently, by a man named David Koresh and his followers in Waco, Texas.

The religions of the late Mr. Jones and Mr. Koresh has been labeled "cults" because they was on the fringe of religion, very fanatical, and very illogical and dangerous. These were extreme examples, of course, but a "cult" religion is usually regarded as one less respectable than a "real" religion.

So any way you look at it, the local pastor's remarks about the Christian faith and the "cults" were overly judgmental. To say that non-Christians (such as Jews or Buddhists, whose religions predate Christianity by centuries) are automatically cult members, while anyone who claims a belief in Christ is not, is clearly illogical. Witness Koresh and Jones, who meet anyone's definition of cult leaders, but who were both professed Christians.

Besides being illogical, calling members of non-Christian faiths is also bigoted. It ought to be publicly recognized as such.

Letters to the Editor

The News-Ledger inadvertently clipped off the back half of this letter from writer William Lowell last week. Here's the letter again, in its entirety, with apologies:

Lighthouse

So Lighthouse Marina (Project) wants to drop the "Marina" part of its development and -- presumably -- its title. Hard financial times making it virtually impossible to market those $200,000.00 riverfront lots for $1,000,000.00-plus homes has been cited as the main reason.

But without the Marina or the houses, where do we stand? We have used city bonding to help finance most of the infrastructure costs. Land was also taken from previous owners using the procedure or threat of eminent domain by the city as if an agent for Lighthouse Marina...it is doubtful that Lighthouse could have obtained said land (even at a higher price) from long-term owners such as the Indian(s)' group(s).

Rather than simply let the Lighthouse folks off the hook, city council owes it to all West Sacramentans -- and the former landowners in particular -- to examine real closely the effects of a "marina-less project" with no real housing to date. We have a fancier golf course and a lot of infrastructure in place local taxpayers are financing until (full?) development of Lighthouse is realized.

Maybe Lighthouse should sell share of stock to the public, giving first choice to those who previously owned the land. Reevaluation and re-zoning of subject land may be necessary to draw in the necessary capital to finally get something going so that our city can begin realizing repayment of its financing/infrastructure costs and see more revenue coming in from new development. To hold out too long for customers of such expensive homes can really prevent the Lighthouse folks from surviving financially. And such inaction continues to squeeze city's finances where the reverse should be the case.

And what effect will this have on that Lighthouse replacement housing for lower-income residents who have already been displaced? Or is it already "dead?" If so, are we to use more of prime West Capitol Ave. land for same?

More realistic goals with specific completion dates should be the wave of the future.

More on Mormons

This is in reply to the Rev. Dave Templin of Trinity Presbyterian Church, captioned "Mormons not Christians," the News-Ledger, March 1.

I am not a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. However, I do think they should have the right to worship the way they wish without the scrutiny of another church. I think they do not belong to the counsel of churches as most denominations such as the Presbyterian and many others do who have made some very controversial decisions over the years. Now Rev. Templin cites many references to the Bible to prove his point against the Mormons; however, he seemed to miss the one that says Judge not as you may also be Judged. If you live in a glass house you should not throw stones. So my advice is always look before you leap.

More on Lighthouse

City Council has seen fit to let Lighthouse Marina have things their way; i.e., no marina need be built and title to marina land remains with Lighthouse, who may later develop said frontage on the Yolo side of the Sacramento River or sell said rights to another developer. In addition to land that city has given Lighthouse, city is expanding 5th Street, including the underpass.

This writer recalls several months ago legal counsel for a major hotel chain obtaining assurances form city council that said upgrading of 5th Street was to be completed, thus insuring the traffic flow affected by such new development be acceptable. Not recalling the technical jargon, the new hotel-to-be was able to reserve those "traffic-accommodation units." Remaining undeveloped land could not cause as much traffic to be generated (on a per acre basis); otherwise, there would have been no concern that the hotel might generate more traffic than local roads can handle after other nearby land is developed. So even without Lighthouse per se, 5th Street and its underpass must be expanded to meet the traffic needs of other new development lest we carve out new roads elsewhere.

Is the Lighthouse part of a trend that includes the Campbell Soup subsidy to keep jobs in Sacramento and the current struggle with Blue Diamond Almonds to keep all of those jobs "local?" Those bidding to lure (or keep) Blue Diamond best remember what took place with those new car dealers in Auburn awhile back: More was given away than what should have been with several dealers moving out anyway.

Make no mistake about it: jobs are very important as is the new development and property tax revenues same usually generates. But when to much giveaway occurs, one must wonder if the bottom lines -- financial, social, environmental -- will witness net improvements. Has attracting businesses --old and new -- become a whole new type of ball game? Who pays for this "reverse taxation?" (Right; the rest of us.) Gambling takes many forms and care must be exercised in the latest form: attempting to attract and retain local businesses.

Redevelopment

"West Sacramento's Redevelopment Agency struggles..." This headline in the March 1 issue of the News-Ledger opened up opportunities for all of us to take a fresh look at the limits of the tool for "development" which was chosen for us by the County. We all have an obligation to know more about the "animal"; that is, the Redevelopment law which was designed to rid inner cities and older communities of blight, whether it was wise to put so much of the land mass of what became the city (over 40 percent) and assessed value (60 percent or close to that).

The State Legislature finally, a year ago, stopped the use of redevelopment as a tool to develop raw land. It did not close the other flaw in the area which was to put into the redevelopment tax increment area, already developed and healthy, developing business and industrial land such as the Port Industrial area and the Reed Ave. area.

The plan did not ever go to the people for a vote (this news is for those who moved here after the area was formed). As much as possible of the residential blocks was excluded so that there could not be vote on the redevelopment area even though there are portions of the residential area in West Sacramento which could qualify as blighted.

The portions of the redevelopment area that have been developing well and adding assessed value to the tax roles are not and will not for the 30 years add any property tax revenue to the general fund and assist in funding city services which are needed. Instead, a portion of the increase goes to the county as a pass-through; 20 percent goes to low income housing. The remainder has been used to buy such properties as Vacation Inn and the porn shops -- police problems -- and assist in the development of the Lighthouse (formerly Lighthouse Marina) development in the hopes that sales and other taxes would offset the loss of the tax increment money to the general fund.

A further consideration must be that the federal and state grants for redeveloping blighted areas, which made the concept of tax increment feasible, are not longer available. One concept that could assist would be to phase in any future uses of the redevelopment tool according to a project by project beginning with the Washington Reuse Project. It was misunderstanding that under the law, the agency is supposed to use projects and include advisory committees of residents and property owners. The present use of tax increment funds now here and now there is not effective. Other approaches can be considered in a "time out" to count to ten, and then make more progress, fully understanding what the limits of redevelopment are.

Fighting poverty

Yolo Community Care Continuum (YCCC) is alarmed to hear that current House budget proposals floating around in Congress both eliminate Community Service Block Grants for 1996 and also propose retroactive program cuts for this year. Locally controlled CSBG grants with broad, permissive guidelines about what can be funded, are aimed at assisting people in crisis and helping to end the cycle of dependence -- just the kind of program the leadership in Congress has said should be funded. These grants currently help to fund many of the social service programs in our county.

If members of Congress truly wish to assist states in reducing poverty, homelessness, and dependence, the Community Service Block Grant is just the type of program that should be funded. Indeed, Congress would do well to consider ways to increase what is currently a very low level of funding. We urge you to join us in writing our local representatives to request their support for continuation of the Community Services Block Grant program.

Local senior center adopts modified 'Wheel of Fortune' game show as a fun monthly event

From the West Sacramento Senior Center

A cleverly modified version of the ever popular "Wheel of Fortune" TV game show has become a regular monthly event at the West Sacramento Senior Center, 664 Cummins Way. It is played on the second Thursday of every month starting at 1 p.m.

The senior gamesters "hit the big time" when a videotape of their January debut played March 6 on Sonic Cable TV's Community Access Channel 18, which broadcasts in West Sacramento, Davis, Woodland and Winters. The February game is expected to be cablecast sometime in April.

Among others, a huge number of seniors in this country have long been ardent fans of the long-running TV game show. Hosts "Pat Sajak" and "Vanna White" have long been household names among most TV viewers. In addition to being entertaining, seniors find it to be a good vehicle for making them think -- for "exercising their minds."

The senior center's modified version, performed in a TV-production setting, offers the same mental challenge and is a lot of fun for both audience and players.

The first game was hosted by Gladys "Sajak" Neighbours and Dorothy "Vanna" Edmonds. The contestants were Mary Ali, Edith Erck and Annie Mae Irby; floor director was Stella Morey; and stagehands were Irene Keller and Dan Parisi.

There were several changes in the February game. "Vanna" was played by Maria Tiderencel; the contestants were Modena Miller, Laurie Albers and Marion Shaw; and Carol Bonilla replaced Keller as a stagehand. Susan Roi, senior center supervisor, was announcer for both games.

All seniors are invited to watch as these fun-filled games are played on the second Thursday of every month starting at 1 p.m. in the center's multipurpose room, 664 Cummins Way. But no prompting from the audience, please!

For more information, call the center at 373-5819.

Library supporters thank VFW as 'Friends of the Year' during annual meet

From the East Yolo Friends of the Library

The East Yolo Friends of the Library named the VFW Post 8762 and Auxiliary as Friends of the Year for 1994 at their annual dinner meeting on February 28.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post has provided a convenient and comfortable site for the Friends dinners for many years and has also provided tables for the booksale as well as other support services. The cooperation of the organization as well as its commitment to the good of the library and community make possible these events. This award is a small thank you for a lot of help.

Also at the dinner meeting, a slate of officers for 1995 was unanimously elected. Serving again as president will be John Siden; J.A. Misfeldt, vice-president; Phyllis Runyan, secretary; and Larry Wyneken, treasurer.

The executive board of the Friends meets on the third Thursday of the month at 4 p.m. in the library meeting room. Plans for the new year will be discussed. The meeting is open to all interested people.

Block grant meeting

The public is invited to attend a community meeting on March 13 at the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library, 1212 Merkeley Ave., beginning at 6:30 p.m. The Community Action Board is holding this meeting to gather comments on how $160,000 in community services block grant funds should be spent throughout the county to assist low-income people.

Local residents and their relatives are in uniform serving Navy, Marines

Navy chief petty officer Terry W. Clark, a 1969 graduate of James Marshall High School of West Sacramento, is more than halfway through a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean and Persian Gulf aboard the destroyer tender USS Cape Cod.

Clark and the Cape Cod crew also have been providing fleet repair services for ships in the Persian Gulf, which have been working in support of the no-fly zone over southern Iraq.

Clark's ship is capable of helicopter operations and is equipped with several large cranes, which enable it to provide a multitude of services to as many as five ships at one time.

He joined the Navy in December 1970.

Navy airman Dustin C. Coor, son of James and Susan Orjames of West Sacramento, is halfway through a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean and Persian Gulf with the aircraft carrier USS Constellation.

Coor entered the gulf through the Strait of Hormuz, a 30-mile wide choke point leading from the Arabian Sea, which provides the only access for ships traveling into and out of the Persian Gulf. While in the gulf, Coor has been operating in a region that has more than half the world's proven reserves of petroleum and natural gas, and is a dynamic area for naval operations, where tensions among nations can impact world economies.

Coor is expected to return to San Diego in May. The 1992 graduate of River City High School joined the Navy in July, 1992.

Navy petty officer 3rd class Gregory J. O'Campo, son of Greg and Cindy O'Campo of West Sacramento, is halfway through a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean and Persian Gulf with the aircraft carrier USS Constellation.

Since January, O'Campo has been in the Persian Gulf supporting the enforcement of the no-fly zone over southern Iraq and the ongoing maritime units have continued to help enforce the U.N.-led international embargo against Iraq by preventing ships from transporting prohibited material to and from Iraq in violation of the agreement.

O'Campo is expected to return to San Diego in May. The 1991 graduate of River City High School joined the Navy in January, 1992.

Marine Cpl. Jack A. Vine, son of James and Janice Vine of West Sacramento, recently received a Letter of Appreciation.

Vine was cited for superior performance of duty while assigned with 1st Battalion, 4th Marines, 1st Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, California.

He consistently performed his demanding duties in an exemplary and highly professional manner.

He is a 1987 graduate of Christian Brothers High School of Sacramento.

Navy petty officer 2nd class Gerald K. Chavez, son of Jessie and Gerald Chavez Sr. of West Sacramento, recently reported for duty at Naval Submarine Base, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

The 1988 graduate of River City High School joined the Navy in September, 1988.

Police log

Feb. 27, 6:51 a.m.

A man was reported running on the roof of a West Capitol Ave. building. Police found a 42-year old West Sacramento man "having delusions" while apparently under the influence of drugs. The man was arrested.

Feb. 28, 9:15 a.m.

An officer stopped a vehicle at Madrone Ave. for a vehicle code violations. A 22-year old transient man had a plastic gun in a holster on the front seat. He gave an officer permission to search a briefcase, and a syringe with methamphetamine was found. The man was arrested and booked.

March 3, 6:03 p.m.

A 49-year old Sacramento-area man was contacted by West Sacramento police on West Capitol Ave. for "suspicious activity." When he stepped out of his vehicle, police noticed a "gravity knife" in plain view on the front seat. The man was arrested. Police then found a tote bag with a loaded, sawed-off shotgun on the back seat.

March 6, 12:13 a.m.

Police picked up two suspects in a nearby motel after a 40 oz. beer bottle was stolen from a West Capitol Ave. market and gas station. When the suspects were apprehended, the employee who could identify them was no longer on duty, and the matter was delayed.

March 6, 6:03 p.m.

Someone made a bomb threat to West Sacramento City Hall, saying the bomb would go off in an hour.

New election date to be discussed

The West Sacramento City Council will conduct a hearing on March 15 at approximately 7:30 p.m. to discuss election date options. Recent California legislation changed the presidential primary from June to March of even numbered years. Because the city elections are held at the same time, our election date will automatically change to March unless the council takes action. Options to be considered are to continue to hold the election in June or change the city election date to coincide with the general election in November.

If you have any questions, ideas, comments or concerns, please share them with the council on March 15.

If you are unable to attend the meeting, please provide your comments in writing to the city clerk, P.O. Box 966, West Sacramento, 95691.

In addition to cash, the Trustee will accept cashier's checks drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association, or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state. In the event tender other than cash is accepted, the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed until funds become available to the payee or endorsee as a matter of right.

Said sale will be made, in an "as is" condition, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances, to satisfy the indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust, advances thereunder, with interest as provided therein, and the unpaid principal of the Note secured by said Deed of Trust with interest thereon as provided in said Note, plus fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust.

Commentary from Sup. Marchand

Myths and facts on America's problem of battered women

By Betsy A. Marchand
Supervisor Fourth District
Yolo County Board of Supervisors

Senator Bill Bradley once called domestic violence "the dirty little secret of America." Well, the "dirty little secret" is out and is being aired daily as the O.J. Simpson trial is beamed across the country and around the world.

In Yolo County, the Domestic Violence Summit, held at the end of January, began the "airing" here -- and Yolo's statistics are sobering. The Office of Criminal Justice Planning crime figures taken from actual police reports reveal Yolo County as one of the top ten counties with incidences of domestic violence and battering. Other statistics for Yolo County are hard to come by, but we know that over 100 women reside at the shelter (Harper House) a year, over 900 calls for help came in on crisis lines last year, approximately 200 children came to the County's attention annually because of violent homes, and counseling programs and agencies report large portions of their caseloads involve domestic violence. Law enforcement officials believe these figures are the "tip of the iceberg" based on their experience in the field. They describe domestic violence as an "epidemic."

The new federal crime bill provides money for vertical prosecution of batterers; District Attorney Dave Henderson has put this in place and is forming an emergency response team. Under new state laws, certain health care providers have reporting requirements; getting the protocols written and institutionalized is beginning to happen but much yet needs to be done.

It will take considerable time and resources to make a serious dent in domestic violence in Yolo or anywhere else. Myths about battering abound and the perpetuation of those myths is a real deterrent to gaining public awareness and support for domestic violence programs. Ten of the most common myths and the actual facts exploding the myths tell the story.

Myth 1: Battering only affects a small percentage of the population.

Fact: Two to four million women of all races and classes are beaten every day in the United States.

Myth 2: Battering is only a momentary loss of control.

Fact: Battering can continue for hours. Many batterers plan their assault or foresee it.

Myth 3: Battered women are masochistic; they like the violence.

Fact: No one likes to be abused. We often stay because we have no options or because we hope our partners will change or because we want the kids to have a father. This does not mean we like the violence.

Myth 4: Battering does not produce serious injuries. It is just a love pat.

Fact: Battered women are often severely injured. In a study of 100 women, 42 said a weapon had been used in the attack.

Myth 5: Drinking causes men to batter.

Fact: Men batter when they are sober and when drunk. They may use the fact that they were drinking as an excuse by saying: "I didn't know what I was doing." Often, they get drunk in order to say that they were not responsible for their behavior.

Myth 6: Therapy will stop his violence. If he goes to therapy, I will be safe at home.

Fact: Therapy won't stop his violence. Therapy can help him learn how to stop being violent. First he has to take responsibility for his violence, admit that violence is his fault, and get some help. Then he can learn other ways to handle frustration and anger. Counseling does help and it takes time. The best way you can help him to stop his violence is to separate from him, at least for a short time. If the batterer blames you for his violence, he probably will batter you again. His violence is not your fault.

Myth 7: Religious faith will prevent him from beating you.

Fact: Even clergymen beat their wives. Religious faith does not stop men from believing they have a right to beat their wives.

Myth 8: It is easy for battered women to leave their abuser.

Fact: It is often very hard to leave. It is hard to find shelter for yourself and children. Money is tight. He often promises never to batter again and so we give him one more chance. The kids and you don't want to uproot yourselves. The unknown is always scary.

Myth 9: Even if he is violent, it is better for the children to have a father.

Fact: Children are very upset and scared by violence. It is better for them to be without a father than to be frightened of their father.

Myth 10: Once a battered woman, always a battered woman.

Fact: Many battered women rebuild their lives and realize how strong and courageous they have been. Because you have been battered does not mean you will be beaten again. Battering is the responsibility of the batterer and has nothing to do with your behavior.

Battered Women Facts

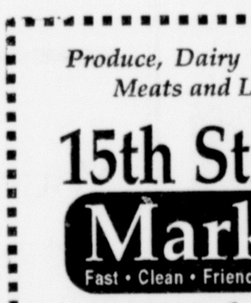

- 2-6 million women are battered yearly in the United States.
- 3/4 of assaults involve divorced or separated partners.
- 40 percent of female murder victims are killed by relatives or boyfriends.
- 40 percent of female murderers are battered women who killed their batterer.
- 3/4 of batterers are not violent in public.
- 60 percent of male children of battered women will become batterers.

There is a great deal of ignorance about domestic violence. Let's hope that one of the few good things to come out of the media hype surrounding the O.J. Simpson trial will be a lessening of that ignorance. That would be a fitting tribute to Nicole Brown Simpson.

site if the marina does not go through, according to Redevelopment Director Val Toppenberg.

The city did not negotiate for any return on its investment because it did not want to put addition financial pressure on the developer, Toppenberg said.

State law requires that 15 percent of the Lighthouse development be low-income housing. In January, Riverbend Development sought and obtained permission from the city to begin to fulfill that requirement by building 76 low-income houses as soon as possible.
